Take
A Kodak
With you
TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.

It's the only practical camera for the purpose.

Others are too bulky, too clumsy. As neither plates nor films can be bought on the grounds, the visiting amateur must carry his supplies with him. With the Kodak this is easy. The roll of film capable of taking one hundred pictures weighs but a few ounces.

The Kodak outfit is self contained. With an ordinary camera it's different. Glass plates and holders enough to take one hundred 4x5 pictures would weigh at least thirty pounds, to say nothing of the weight of the camera. The Kodak, loaded for 100 pictures, 4x5, weighs 4½ pounds. The moral is obvious—Take a Kodak With You.
